Coaching and psychotherapy are different modalities and it is important that clients understand the differences between them. Although both coaching and psychotherapy utilize knowledge of human behavior, motivation, behavioral change, and interactive counseling techniques, there are major differences in the goals, focus, and level of professional responsibility. Holistic Medicine, prayer work, and intuitive consulting, i.e. psychic impressions, do not replace licensed medical, business or psychological support. Both processes offer permission to receive laying on of hands or energy medicine. Coaching and energy medicine or intuitive consulting are experimental programs and do not offer any guarantee of success.

Psychotherapy, on the other hand, is a health care service. Its primary focus is to identify, diagnose, and treat nervous and mental disorders. The goals include alleviating symptoms, understanding the underlying personality dynamics which create symptoms, changing the dysfunctional behaviors which are the result of these disorders, and helping clients to cope with their psychological problems. While psychotherapy may be reimbursable through health insurance policies, coaching services, at present, are not. It is understood and agreed to by clients that if either of us recognizes that clients have a problem that would benefit from psychotherapy, Louisa Mastromarino may refer or direct clients to appropriate resources in addition to or in lieu of coaching. In some situations as a condition of continuance or programs, Louisa Mastromarino, consultant, may insist that clients enter psychotherapy and that she have your consent to discuss matters which concern you with your psychotherapist.
